On the evening of December 29th the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robertson was the scene of a gay party to celebrate the 18th birthday of their son, O'Neil.

The house was decorated with evergreen, holly and mistletoe with place cards and table favors in seasonable harmony.

Covers were laid for 18 classmates and friends and at half past six a bounteous supper was served. A treasure hunt opened the program of games and Erland Kennis-ton was the lucky hunter. Charades, guessing games, folk dances and Monopoly were enjoyed until a late hour. The guest of honor received gifts and congratulations and the event was one of the happiest of the season.

Maine Crop Season Reported Moderately Favorable

The 1936 crop season was moderately favorable for crop production in Maine, according to a joint report released by the United States and Maine departments of Agriculture. Average monthly temperatures were below normal for all months except May and June during the crop season extending from April 1 to October 31. Rainfall was too heavy in the spring at planting time and again in October at harvesting time, while it was somewhat deficient during the intervening months.

Total crop acreage in Maine is estimated at 1,323,950 acres in 1936, compared with 1,316,200 acres harvested in 1935. Increases in the acreage of oats, hay, dried beans, beans for canning, and sweet corn for canning were partially offset by decreases in the acreage of corn for silage, wheat, and peas for canning.

The 1936 Maine potato crop is estimated at 44,000,000 bushels compared with 38,400,000 bushels harvested in 1935 and 44,078,000 bushels the five year average, 1928-1932. The crop was retarded in the spring by excessive rains, and warm showery weather during August was favorable to blight development. Rainfall was excessive at harvest time. Yields were exceedingly variable although much better than were expected earlier in the season. Late blight rot was present to a considerable extent when potatoes went into storage. The yield per acre of 275 bushels compares with 240 bushels in 1935 and 324 bushels in 1934.

The Maine apple crop at 576,000 bushels compares with 893,000 bushels harvested in 1935 and 1,839,000 bushels the five year average, 1928-1932. The low production this season reflects in part the loss of trees from winter injury in recent years and also the damage done to the crop by the late spring frosts. The commercial apple crop is estimated at 400,000 bushels compared with 588,000 bushels harvested last year.

Truck Goes Over River Bank

While slowly approaching the town dump near Mayville Wednesday afternoon, the Chevrolet truck of Bryant's Market went out of control on the glare ice which slopes toward the river and went over the bank. The driver, Norman Hale, was able however to keep the car headed toward the edge so that it went straight down to the ice and did not overturn. The truck suffered little damage and Mr Hale was not harmed. The truck was pulled back by the town tractor.

Maine Food Advertising Bringing Results

Maine's food products advertising campaign conducted through newspapers and the radio along the Atlantic Seaboard, with the follow-up letters to retail outlets calling attention to the advertisements, has produced exceptionally gratifying results, the Maine Development Commission announced today.

The campaign features potatoes, pies, blueberries, canned sea foods canned sweet corn, peas, beans, apple and other Maine produced foodstuffs.

Hundreds of letters have been received by the Commission since the campaign started a short time ago, requesting copies of a booklet which lists many recipes for the preparation of the foods advertised.

Other results of the campaign that have been noted include an increase in retail sales of Maine products, inclusion of Maine foods on hotel and restaurant menus and in retail stores' advertisements, and the printing of potato recipes on newspaper and magazine food pages which formerly were devoted [illegible] recipes.

The advertisements have occupied prominent positions on newspaper food pages.

Everett F. Greason, executive secretary of the Maine Development Commission sponsoring the campaign in cooperation with the State Agriculture Department, said he believes this is the first time any State has used advertising to help retail outlets to sell the products of its growers or producers.

Maine's vegetable, fruit, berries and sea food canning industry ranks high among the States while one county alone in Maine, Aroostook, produces one tenth of all the potatoes grown in the United States.

Many of the letters received by the commission from residents of other States asked where Maine products can be purchased in their respective communities.

The commission answers every letter of that nature giving specific information.

Farm real estate values in the United States rose 4% last year and are 8% higher than they were in the summer of 1933.

Stable Damaged By Fire

Local firefighters were called out early Monday afternoon to extinguish a troublesome blaze at the home of O. H. Anderson on Church Street. The fire evidently started in the back of the shed, but when discovered had made alarming progress in the adjoining stable.

The large hose was used but once when necessary to extinguish an outbreak on the shed roof near the stable, and the line from the booster tank was employed to good advantage in the stable loft. The firemen were much hampered by the smoke and some time was lost as a result. It was necessary to tear up several sections of metal roofing which had been laid over shingles before the fire could be declared out.

During the early progress of the battle several of bystanders including the scribe professed to see room for improvement in the methods used, but after learning more of the obstacles encountered we are led to believe that we still have a pretty good local outfit. The new apparatus performed to perfection.

Man Loses Arm Under Sled

While hauling cordwood at the Shirley Haselton place in Albany Tuesday, Arthur Kimball of that town was thrown from the load when the sled slued on ice and before he regained consciousness his right arm was pinned under the sled runner. By that time his companion had stopped the team but it was necessary to unload the sled before he could be released. The arm was badly mangled and he was taken to the Rumford Hospital where it was amputated above the elbow. At last reports his condition was considered favorable.

A New Year—A New Congress

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

America at this time greets a New Year and a new Congress.

What do the American people ask of each?

Of the New Year, opportunity for longer strides along the road to recovery

Of the new Congress, whatever action, or restraint, may be necessary to make such strides possible

America is ready for those lengthened strides. The need exists for new buildings, new goods, replacements, for many things that supply and serve the people. Industry and commerce—all our creative facilities—stand ready to meet that need. Workers in every field are eager for the employment that increased production assures. Talk of class cooperation among all elements essential to a sustained program fills the newspapers.

All that seems necessary is Confidence

Confidence that public, rather than factional advantages, will sway the men chosen to represent us in our National Legislature.

Confidence that no new barriers will be placed in the way of work and production.

Confidence that constructive plans for the future will not have to be scrapped overnight to meet the vagaries of every glittering economic novelty.

Confidence that the worker's income will not be wasted by political extravagance billed against his present and future earnings.

Confidence that throughout the nation humanitarian considerations will dominate political aspects in emergency measures to aid the unfortunate.

The Seventy-fifth Congress faces a glorious opportunity to inspire this confidence.

If it is to do this, gratefully it can earn the gratitude of a great and emancipated people.

If it fails . . . our wishes for a Prosperous New Year will have been in vain.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The spokesmen of the people—that is, the Senators and Representatives who will make up the next Congress—are converging on Washington. They are settling themselves in hotel suites, apartments, houses. They are meeting unofficially and discussing the tasks that lie before them. And they are looking forward, cheerfully and otherwise, to a very heavy business calendar.

Leadership of the Senate will not be changed from last session. Robinson, of Arkansas, who was re-elected by a staggering majority, will head the overwhelming Democratic majority. McNary of Oregon, one of the few Republicans of high public position who survived the Roosevelt landslide, will be spokesman for the GOP minority. In the House, the Republican leadership will also probably be the same as it was last session, but there will be a new speaker. There is considerable competition on foot for this very important post, but it seems certain that Administration-backed Representative Rayburn of Texas (who has been in the House for more than a generation but is not widely known) will get the necessary votes. His chief opponent is Representative O'Connor of New York, 18 years a member of the House.

These leaders and their followers will have plenty to do between January and June, as will be seen from pages ahead. It would seem to slow of the great legislative mill rather that there would be little trouble in opposing or voting legislation. But unless all the forecasters are wrong, there will be more a form for speech delivered from the floors of both branches, many a bitter struggle in committee rooms.

For example, one of the biggest questions facing congressmen is that of appropriations. The President is said to favor a position to call for a balanced budget. Word has already been sent out that relief funds will be drastically reduced. Many WPA beneficiaries are given the gate.

Present WPA funds will run out along about January 21. More funds will be appropriated—but the President's ideas as to totals are likely to be very different than those of lesser officeholders. So he faces some internal warfare when that matter comes up. Probably his wishes will determine the final outcome but there will be fireworks first.

As contrasted with the burning topic of spending, it seems only reasonable to presume that the President's desires will be followed without much argument in most other matters. He wants the Reciprocal Tariff renewed. It undoubtedly will be. He also wants the expiring RFC given a new lease on life—that too will be done, unless a miracle happens. So with the President's power to devalue our currency, the bet-all measure, FHA insurance of defaulted mortgages, and other measures which are now in effect under expiring laws.

It is said that there will be no law repudiating, in different legal terms, the defunct NRA, and that the 30-hour week bill will die a legislative death.

As for the Administration's attitude toward the Supreme Court, there are many guesses being made, but the only person who can say definitely what will be done the President, has said nothing. The recent Supreme Court decision on the New York unemployment insurance laws has led some to believe that the Court is "following the election returns" and becoming more "liberal." That remains to be seen. There is always the possibility that should the Court void measures close to the Administration's heart, Mr. Roosevelt will ask the country to pass a new Constitutional Amendment restricting the Court's power.

Readers to naturally looking forward to Congress convening, with keen interest and some trepidation. Leaders hope the President will be able to keep all factions contented. There naturally appears his announced stand in favor of balanced budget and debt reduction.

The MAINE MEETING PLACE

by EARLE DEUCETTE

It is my very great privilege at this time to wish you and yours a a most happy New Year.

On behalf of the Maine Development Commission, which as you know, is the State organization entrusted with the recreational, agricultural and industrial development of the state, please let me thank you for your keen interest in our work.

We hope sincerely that during the new year we will merit the trust and faith you have placed in us.

This newspaper, and in fact all newspapers, have been exceedingly kind to us. They have helped to keep you informed during the past of what this Commission is trying to do to make this grand state of ours a still better place in which to live.

The editor of this paper has shown by his keen, far-sighted interest in the development of Maine that he is a public-spirited citizen of the first order; one who many times in the past has placed the good of the community above his own interests.

As we of the Commision have travelled around through the state those of you with whom we have come in contact have shown us the utmost in true Maine hospitality. By your kindness you have spurred us on to new efforts to make Maine happier and more prosperous.

We are pleased to report now that 1936 saw the recreational business arise to new heights. More people visited Maine during this period than during any time in the past.

The money they left for the privilege of vacationing here amounted to about $100,000,000 constituting Maine's greatest industry.

All of us figured in the benefits of this great industry which has been made possible in great measure by the climatic and recreational advantages with which we have been blessed.

Our visitors spent hundreds in gasoline taxes alone, others left still more thousands in the state in payment of taxes on recreational property they own here.

Our farmers, fishermen, builders, guides, store employees, garage workers, boat builders, lobsters, and in fact a vast army of us found employment by reason of this recreational trade.

This coming year, we have every reason to hope, will be even better than the past.

This amazing growth of Maine as a recreational paradise has been due, not to one thing, but to several. As I have said, we are blessed with unsurpassed natural facilities. We here at the Commission humbly hope that our advertising, publicity, and general development has been of some assistance. Surely as great a factor as any, however, has been the graciousness with which you fellow citizens of Maine, have greeted our visitors.

Your genuine Down East hospitality has had a profound effect on the consciousness of those who vacation in Maine. You have made them feel, not that they were customers of ours, but that they were true friends, as indeed they are.

We who are in closest contact with these visitors to Maine never fail to be thrilled when they express their gratitude at the treatment they receive in Maine.

We are thrilled because we as Maine people, part and parcel of the best state in the Union, and that we feel certain will, in the future rise to greater heights than any of us can realize; heights of happiness, peace and prosperity beyond measure.

ROY C. BLAKE

Mr. Blake was born in Bethel Jan. 26, 1899, the youngest son of the late Charles G. and Ida Brown Blake, and was educated in the local schools and Gould Academy.

Completing his education he became associated with his father on the home farm, which is now one of the best upland farms in this section. For many years the late Blake had been a very successful grower of sweet corn for canning factories and a large producer of milk, for the Berlin and Portland markets.

In 1934 Mr. Blake bought the dairy business of the late Chapman estate and last year the farm of E. F. Peterkin. He is now one of the large potato growers in this vicinity. During the past two years he has twice added to the farm by purchase of adjoining land and the entire tract is operated as a most modern and efficient dairy farm. The barn has been remodeled to conform to the latest sanitary and his plant is equipped with every accessory and convenience for the production of pure milk and cream.

Mr. Blake was married to Miss Dorothy Gilmes, daughter of the late Daniel and Matilda Gilmes, and they have three children, Emma, Harlan and [illegible].

Mr. Average Poultryman did you ever lay out a program for your poultry year beginning with the baby chicks? If you have never done so, or, if your program last year did not yield a reasonable return for labor and investment, we will be pleased to send you, free of charge, a copy of "SIMPLIFIED POULTRY KEEPING." In the compiling of this booklet the authors have kept their "feet on the earth." They have clearly and definitely outlined therein a program that covers the entire poultry year. THIS PROGRAM IS PRACTICAL. The poultryman who follows it will be able to live and pay his grain bill.

JAPANESE MINISTER CONTEMPLATES ALLY

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita gazes at photographs of Chancellor Hitler after he had concluded an anti-Communist pact with Germany.

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH

We wish you all a very happy New Year!

The Big Events of 1936 are just about all crossed off. The Christmas celebration is over. Last night we had our Father and Son Banquet. Tonight we are having a social for all of the High School young people and those back from college and teaching, or any who may be around for the Holidays. We are also inviting Warren Palmer to come over from Norway and bring some of his young people. Tomorrow night Waterford celebrates New Year's Eve, and while there, the curtain will fall over 1936. We say it has been in the whole a very happy and successful year for the United Parish. It brought its shocks, and losses that cannot be replaced, but we finish the year with grateful hearts, thanking God for His mercies.

On Sunday our services of worship will center around the observance of the Lord's Supper. The service at Albany will be held at the Town House School. There will probably be no more services at the Church at Hunt's Corner until spring comes again.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Swank and their children are starting for their homes in Pennsylvania where they will spend two weeks of vacation visiting the home folks. The Swank family are to be all together for the first time, on New Year's for several years. We hope it may be most happy for them. We hope the Swanks will have a good vacation.

There are Circle Suppers this week at East Stoneham and Center Lovell, on Thursday and Friday evenings. We have heard of none being scheduled for next week. The program looks rather thin for next week, but it may be just the reaction from the holidays. Already are we looking forward to the Winter Carnival that is scheduled for February 20.

We surely did have a jolly time at the Father and Son Banquet. The mothers and sisters and aunts served a delicious meal. The Andrews Orchestra gave us some good music. Prin Hunt of Hebron Academy gave a helpful and stimulating address. Capt. George Coe of Center Lovell, proved an excellent Toastmaster. The caps and noisemakers made it a gala occasion. Great credit would we all give to George Gladhill and his efficient committee: Roy Wardwell, of Albany; Henry Fox and Walter Cook of Stoneham; Urban Tyler and Walter Fillebrown, of Waterford; Charles Nelson and Harold Kimball, of South Waterford; Burton Sanderson and Gene Pinkham, of East Waterford; and Harry Brown and Myron Lord, of North Waterford. We give a most hearty vote of thanks to all who helped to make the occasion so successful.
